

Women's new voice in hi-tech industries

TOOWONG'S Women in Technology (WiT) has elected Anne-Marie Birkill as its new president.

WiT's aim is to create a sustainable network of members focused on advancing women in technology industries including information communication, biotechnology and engineering.

Ms Birkill is the chief executive officer of i.lab Incubator Pty Ltd.

With a career in the technology industry spanning more than 20 years, Ms Birkill has worked in senior management roles in the private, public and university sectors.

She now manages a State Government-owned incubator that services 30 early-stage technology-based companies.

Since her appointment in 2005, i.lab has achieved national recognition as the 2006 Business Innovation and Incubation Australia Australian Incubator of the Year and established a biotechnology incubator at Brisbane Technology Park.

■ For more details about WiT visit www.wit.org.au.

■ Anne-Marie Birkill